Josh Day, a New Hampshire native and current Massachusetts resident, has been performing comedy for over six years. He began his comedy career after a freak paddle boarding accident almost left him paralyzed, and with a broken neck. After having broken his neck, Josh decided it was time to break a leg doing stand-up. Josh enjoys making people laugh away life's trials and tribulations, if just for a fleeting moment. With a mixture of wordplay, personal stories, and self-depreciation, Josh has worked hard to grow his act.

Josh currently produces and hosts a show at Brandeis University in Waltham, MA, along with a show at the Burren in Somerville, MA. He also produces and hosts the Stone Church Comedy and Music club series in Newmarket, NH. Josh's priorities include comedy, helping people forget their woes, and assisting in bringing his brand of humor to your venue.

He has opened or featured for comedians, including, but not
